Prayer for Forgiveness

Father:

How weak we are is not exactly news to you. Every day in many ways, we start out with marvelous intentions and end up trying to get even, to get out of responsibility, to nurture dishonesty in thought or act.

Forgive us, Lord. Your Son knew us well and we know not what we do. Even more, let us have some of your power so that we may forgive one another. That's where most of our trouble starts. And on a deeper level, help us forgive ourselves, to believe in your pardon gained by dying and rising.

Forgiveness instead of resentment could get to be a habit – and not a bad one at that!

Amen

PRAYER TO OUR LADY:

Remember, O most loving Virgin Mary, that never was it known that anyone who fled to your protection, implored your help, or sought your intercession was left unaided. Inspired with this confidence, we turn to you, O Virgin of virgins, our Mother. To you we come, before you we stand, sinful and sorrowful. O Mother of the Word Incarnate, do not despise our petitions, but in your mercy hear us and answer us.

Amen

Announcements:

St. Angela Merici

Feastday: January 27

When she was 56, Angela Merici was asked by Pope Clement VII to take charge of a religious order of nursing sisters. She was aware that he was offering her a great honor and a great opportunity to serve when he asked her, but Angela knew that nursing was not what God had called her to do with her life.

All around her hometown she saw poor girls with no education and no hope. During the time that Angela lived, education for women was for the rich or for nuns. Angela herself had learned everything on her own. Her parents had died when she was ten and she had gone to live with an uncle. She was deeply disturbed when her sister died without receiving the sacraments. A vision reassured her that her sister was safe in God's care -- and also prompted her to dedicate her life to God.

When her uncle died, she returned to her hometown and began to notice how little education the girls had. Women weren't allowed to be teachers and unmarried women were not supposed to go out by themselves -- even to serve others. Nuns were the best educated women but they weren't allowed to leave their cloisters. There were no teaching orders of sisters like we have today. She brought together a group of unmarried women, fellow Franciscan and other friends, who went out into the streets to gather up the girls they saw and teach them. These women had little money and no power, but were bound together by their dedication to education and commitment to Christ. Living in their own homes, they met for prayer and classes. She often reminded her followers to, "Reflect that in reality you have a greater need to serve [the poor] than they have of your service."

It took many years of frustration before Angela's radical ideas of education for all women were accepted. They are commonplace to us now because people like Angela wanted to help others no matter what the cost. She and her followers were so successful in their service that Angela was asked to bring her innovative approach to education to other cities. Angela reminds us of her approach to change with these words: "Beware of trying to accomplish anything by force, for God has given every single person free will and desires to constrain none; he merely shows them the way, invites them and counsels them."
